£1,000 for a Menu Card.
At a private luncheon given at Liverpool in honour of Captain and when the card was put up for sale it realised £1,000, which is being handed to the Red Cross.

Doctors Differ!

A specialist certificate having been handed to Mr. Maclean,
M.P., at the House of Commons tribunal when a case was called,
he said the tribunal's experience was that the greater the eminence of the physician or surgeon, the greater the probability of some waste difference of opinion with some other physician or surgeon of equal eminence.

An Adventurous Career.

During the hearing of a charge
at Marlborough Street Police Court recently, against Roy Mackey, an engineer, of obtaining credit without disclosing that he was an undischarged bankrupt,
it was mentioned that the defendant had served with distinction in the war and that he had been captured by the Germans and had escaped. He was committed for trial and released on bail of £200.

British Borrowings from America.
Mr. Baldwin stated, last month, in answer to a question in the Commons by Mr. King:- "The total sum borrowed by this country in the United States of America since the outbreak of war, including $400,000,000 ($80,000,- 000) lately advanced by the United States Government, is about $2,000,000,000 ($400,000,000).
I have no exact information as to the sums borrowed by the other Allied Governments."

Airmen's Wife found by His Body.

An inquest was held at Knar-borough recently on the body of Lieutenant Gibson Turnbull,
Royal Flying Corps, whose body was discovered in the River Nidd by his wife while walking on the river side. It was stated that Lieutenant Turnbull, after alighting in a field, rose again but struck a hedge, and his machine dived into the water.
His neck was broken. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

France's £4,000,000,000 War
Expenditure.
The report of the French Budget Committee of the Chamber of Deputies on the provisional credits for the third quarter of 1917 has been submitted to the Chamber. This will bring the total credits since the beginning of the war to 93 milliards of francs (£3,720,000,000), or 100 milliards (£4,000,000,000), including advances to the Allies.
The National Defence bonds produced 2,160 million francs (£86,- 400,000) in March, April, and May.

Naturalized German's Neglect.
At Bedford recently, Dennis John Richardson (formerly Kuhlman) was fined £9 under the National Registration Act for failing to notify his change of address. The Town Clerk, who prosecuted, said the defendant, a naturalized German, was the new German master at Bedford Modern School. The defendant, who pleaded negligence, said he was an Italian subject. His father was an Austrian now living in Germany, and his mother, an Englishwoman, was living at Leichworth.

An Alien's Fees and a Fine.
At London last month, before
Mr. Clarke Hall, Paul von Meyer, of Hertford-road, Dilton, an alien, was fined £35 for failing to notify his change of address, the magistrate remarking that he regarded him as a very dangerous
man. Detective-sergeant Taylor said that the defendant had been creating people for money, and other complaints. In one case he had attended a rich man, at his home, and on several occasions had refused to leave until he had been paid £3 7s 6d for a single visit. The defendant had borrowed money from a number of people, including £20 from a woman at whose house he had lodged. He had lived at Bournemouth for three years, where he and his wife registered as Russians. The defendant paid the doctor, and his wife taught languages. The defendant had been in the army and had been wounded.

GENERAL NEWS.

Rising in Portuguese East Africa Ended.

Information has been received from the Times of June 13 by the Portuguese Minister for War that the tribes in Portuguese East Africa, which, owing to German intrigues, recently rose in rebellion, have been severely defeated. They have suffered many casualties, and over 500 prisoners have been taken, besides a great quantity of cattle and other booty. The rising is considered practically over.

Novel French Taxes.

The French Budget Committee is framing a system of new taxation designed to produce 1,200 million francs (£48,000,000). A tax of one per thousand on commercial payments will be levied on total outgoings. A tax will be imposed on private expenditure, with the exception of sums spent on food, firing, lighting, and rents. This tax will be of 5 per cent. on expenditure on clothes, furniture, &c., and 10 per cent. on expenditure on luxuries. The tax is expected to produce £18,000,000. The Bill establishes a succession duty payable at the moment of succession, and an annual tax on the value of the inheritance payable during the life of the beneficiary.

AUSTRIA AND PEACE.

The telegram which Reuter's Agency sent us yesterday, in which Count Czernin is reported in the course of an interview to have made certain remarks regarding peace, is of more than ordinary interest, particularly at present, when there seems to be a more than usually eager desire for peace negotiations to take place. Count Czernin is probably the most important of Austria's statesmen, and as such his utterances merit very serious consideration. The interview, it appears, was the result of an effort to obtain Count Czernin's opinion of the aspect of affairs subsequent to Mr. Lloyd George's masterly analysis of the new German Chancellor's utterance, which the Prime Minister very properly characterised as a "dexterous, forcing-all-ways speech." Count Czernin, true to the bond that still ostensibly unites Germany and Austria, says that there is "complete agreement between Berlin and Vienna regarding peace." And that peace, he further adds, must be "honourable." We shall not at present seek to discover means by which it could easily be proved that in many respects there is not at present, nor has there been for a considerable time, unity of action between Austria and Germany, which Count Czernin endeavours to indicate as existing.

As to the much desired peace being an "honourable" one, that certainly is a consummation devoutly to be wished by all. Regarding that point little or no difficulty is likely to be experienced, but there can be no doubt that all that the phrase implies will prove to be a very intricate problem. The Entente have had not a little experience of Teutonic ideas of "honourable" dealings, and such being the case it is not improbable that their views may be at variance regarding that point. Still, if Germany and Austria will but recognise the generally accepted meaning of the word, a start to the peace negotiations might be seriously contemplated and good results attained. "The Entente will never crush us and we do not intend to crush them," is another remark attributed to Count Czernin. To this the obvious reply is that the Entente have not, and never have had, any intention of "crushing" their enemies; but they are determined—to-day more than ever—to crush the military spirit of Prussia from which has emanated so much appalling misery. We should have thought that Count Czernin was too sensible a man to dwell on the obvious, as he does when he says that the Germans and Austrians do not intend to crush the Entente; and doubtless the only reason for the remark lies in the fact that it is part and parcel of the scheme of deception that has for so long been practised on the deluded Germans and Austrians. Count Czernin knows perfectly well that the Entente will not be crushed, for the very good reason that Germany and Austria are to-day in a much worse position than at any other time to perform the "crushing" process. Count Czernin's next statement is perhaps the most important of all. He predicts that "the war will end in peace by an understanding, and he adds: "hence further sacrifices are useless." This is a most significant admission—one of the most significant made by the enemy—and it is therefore well worth pondering over. Clearly, it is an open invitation to cease hostilities and to endeavour to seek a basis upon which to negotiate for peace. It is quite impossible, however, for the Entente nations to acquiesce even in such a direct offer unless the enemy first signifies his willingness to evacuate other than German soil, otherwise it is useless for him or anyone else to continue thinking that peace terms can be considered by such high-spirited nations as the French, the Belgians and awakened Russians.

As soon as Germany and her satellites indicate their readiness to leave the territory they still occupy in France, Belgium and Russia, the sooner will peace negotiations be advanced. Meantime, such utterances as that of Count Czernin show how the enemy views the situation, and it is quite evident that he would be only too glad to make concessions to bring about a cessation of hostilities. He talks of "no conquests" while he still remains in Belgium, Poland and Northern France. When he leaves these territories—and not before then—or at least until he expresses readiness to hand over to the Belgians what is theirs, not until then are the Entente Powers likely to look upon any peace suggestion, no matter how tempting. The Entente Powers are as desirous of peace as any civilised nation ought to be, but they know that unless with that peace Prussian military power is smashed, a halt will be futile, as would also be ultimately their enormous sacrifices in men, money and property. Peace must usher in a period of unity among the nations by which the "dogs of war" will be kept well in check.

War News.

In looking over some Bangkok papers recently, we were struck by the fact that Britishers in foreign settlements are better served in regard to war news than are their brethren in, say, the Crown Colonies. The ordinary service of war telegrams is not so extensive, it is true, but regularly the Press is supplied with a weekly summary of the principal war happenings, besides a review of the actual military operations on the several fronts. These messages make intensely interesting reading. Moreover, they enable one to gain a truer perspective of the events of the conflict than is possible through the reading of daily messages, in the details of which one is apt to lose the general significance of specific developments. These telegrams are sent out by the Foreign Office in London and are freely circulated to British newspapers abroad. We do not know whether the authorities here receive similar communications from the Colonial Office, but, if so, it would be wise were they distributed to the local Press, both European and native, for, apart from the information which they contain, their circulation would be of material value as propaganda work on behalf of the Allied cause.

America's Part.

Fortunate in their President, the United States appear to be equally fortunate in their Secretary of State. Mr. Woodrow Wilson, as President, has long since proved himself to be the sagacious, broad-minded statesman that a vast and great Democracy such as the United States should have at its head, especially in these critical times. Mr. Lansing, who, as Secretary of State, is virtually the President's "right-hand man" has shown of late that he is not unworthy of the great leader he assists. His remarks to the United States Reserve Corps of Officers mark him as a man possessing an independence of mind and a soundness of judgment that are wholly admirable. He clearly points out the true part that the United States is taking in the great European War, shows that it is their own and nobody else's battle that they are fighting, and very pertinently asks whether a victorious Germany would withhold its hands from such a rich prize as the United States. Even a less precocious individual than Macaulay's schoolboy knows that a victorious Germany would possess at once on America. Mr. Lansing clearly shows that the United States, in doing what they have done, could not have done better for themselves, as well as for their brave Allies, and he did well to emphasise that America's soldiers are now fighting "for those things for which your forefathers were willing to die." They are fighting for their liberty, the liberty to live as they please as an enlightened Democracy, to be under no domination of a self-exalted class of parasites, bolstered up by an army whose existence is intolerable unless as a prop and not as a tyrannical force to the people who support it. Mr. Lansing's address, a brief report of which will be found in our telegraphic news—strikes the true note of Democracy which to-day has moribund Autocracy in death-grip.

More Humlike Machinations.

According to the latest news the wily Hun has recently been turning his attention to Rumania, where it is stated he made a "really big effort to secure a revolution somewhat similar to what took place in Russia, and including an immense propaganda among the Army, which was urged to follow Russia's example." Of course, Germany's object was nothing more nor less than to create so much confusion that both the Rumanians and their Army would find that they had quite enough to do within their own frontiers without taking further part in the struggle against Germany. Happily, the Rumanians—both Army and people—understand the Boche too well to be deluded by him, and, understanding him, detect him right heartily and will have no dealings with him of any kind. Once more the underhand methods of the Huns have met with the deserts they thoroughly well merit.

Open-Air Concert.
A promenade concert has been arranged for to-morrow (Wednesday) evening from 9 to 11 p.m. under the auspices of the Police Reserve, whose Band will be in attendance. The concert takes place at North Point.

The Health of the Colony.
During the week ending July 28, there were two cases of plague reported, both the affected persons being Chinese. One of these proved fatal. The total number of cases of plague since January 1 is now brought up to thirty-six, and the number of deaths has been thirty-three. During the week under review there were five non-fatal cases of enteric fever, the sufferers being one British, one Canadian, one Chinese, one Japanese and one Indian. There were also notified one case of diphtheria, non-fatal, and one case of puerperal fever, also non-fatal. Both these cases were among the Chinese community.

An Urgent Request.

Rather an unusual incident occurred in the Victoria Theatre last night while the performance of "The Camerons" was in progress. Mr. Cellier, the Manager of the Company, came before the footlights and stated that a telephonic message had been received from the Hongkong Hotel urgently requesting any medical man in the audience at once to proceed to the hotel, where his services were required. An American naval doctor was observed to answer the call. On inquiry this morning, a telegraph representative was informed that the case did not turn out to be so serious as was at first anticipated.

"THE CAMERONS."

This talented Concert Party again attracted a large audience to the Victoria Theatre last night, and once more submitted a most delightful programme, which was thoroughly appreciated by all, as was evident from the numerous demands made for encores. Both in the concerted pieces and the solos, "The Camerons" excelled even previous performances, affording a genuinely excellent entertainment. Vocally, the party is remarkably fine, and Hongkong has not for a long time, as we have already pointed out, heard such an all-round, talented Company. The singing of Miss Gascoigne, Miss Peggy Ross, and Miss Lyle Jeffries of several popular songs, among which were "The Perfect Day," "The Long, Lone Trail," "The Broken Doll," "Solo Mic," and "If you were the only Girl" was an exquisite and an artistic success in every respect. Mr. Gerald Osborne's fine voice also delighted everyone, and much amusement was again forthcoming from the clever "Interlude" by Miss Rhoda Windrum and Mr. O. S. Kitta, both of whom carried off their part by no means easy part with greater credit and to the evident appreciation of the audience. Miss Windrum is a very talented comedienne and Mr. Kitta, who is also responsible for the whole production of "The Camerons," is of extremely versatile. As usual, Mr. Athol Tier proved himself to be a truly splendid comedian—one of the very best ever seen in the Far East. Miss Ross and Miss Jeffries were as "witty and bright" as ever and were deservedly very popular. Mr. Kerahaw at the piano was an extremely useful member of the Company and Mr. Malcolm Penrice was first rate in his violin solos.

This evening at 8 o'clock "The Camerons" give a matinee and at night their farewell performance. To lovers of a clever, lively and genuinely talented entertainment we advise them not to miss "The Camerons."

WAR SAVINGS.

Statement by the Hongkong and South China Association.

The Union Insurance Society of Canton, Limited, sends us the following statement of the rough position of the Hongkong and South China War Savings Association at the end of June, the first half year since its inauguration:—

In January $49,380 was subscribed.

In February $62,075 was subscribed.

In March $210,305 was subscribed.

In April $123,680 was subscribed.

In May $82,125 was subscribed.

In June $61,830 was subscribed.

Apart from the above $494,700 has been subscribed which has been sent direct to Singapore and converted into Straits dollars and invested, and the sum of $2,950.76 in Straits currency also subscribed has been sent direct to Singapore for investment.

The largest amount subscribed in one month was $210,305 in March last, chiefly as the result, we think, of the appeal we made in a little pamphlet issued at that time urging all those who were not already investing their money in War Loans outside this Association to become Members; but since March there has been a sad falling off.

The total amount of Straits War Loans taken up is just over $600,000 made up of investments of:

One of $20,000.

One of $17,160.

Five of $10,000.

Twelve between $5,000 and $10,000.

Sixteen between $3,000 and $5,000.

Twenty-six between $2,000 and $3,000.

Seventy-three between $1,000 and $2,000.

One hundred and thirty-eight between $500 and $1,000.

Two hundred and eighty-three between $200 and $500.

Three hundred and sixty-one between $100 and $200.

Four hundred and nineteen between $50 and $100.

One thousand and sixty-five between $5 and $50.

The total membership reached 678, namely:—

Hongkong	580
Amoy	40
Canton	33
Macao	5
Swatow	4
Pekhoi	3
Foochow	3

It cannot be too strongly urged that more money and Members are wanted. Incidentally, we would like to call attention to the fact that Straits War Loans at 6 per cent. is an excellent and recognised Trustee investment, and we cannot imagine any investment so attractive and safe for Trust funds.

The daily cost of this war to the British Empire and her Allies is more than ever, and every penny towards the maintenance of this cost will help to shorten the war.

It should not be thought that the investment of small sums is troublesome and not desired by us; no sum is too small, and we are in receiving $5 and $10 notes, which mount up in an extraordinary way and most people can afford this small sum.

A membership of 500 is very small for Hongkong.

We are well aware that the Membership list of this Association does not represent all the money that is going to the Government War Loans. There are of course those who prefer to invest their money direct, but we think even these might with advantage consider the saving to the Government of labour and the immense clerical work arising from multitudinous individual subscriptions if they joined and invested their money through this Association.

We are also aware that there are some who positively cannot for various reasons afford to save anything for investment.

We are desirous of making the subscription list as large as possible and worthy of the Colony, and we beg to urge those who are not members, particularly those

A TROUBLESOME "BOY."

Sent to Gaol for Two Months.

A "boy" was charged before Mr. J. B. Wood, at the Police Court this morning, with stealing a leather travelling trunk and three blankets, the property of Mr. Colin McKersie, 24 Nathan Road.

Prosecutor said that the "boy" had been employed by him for five days, and on the evening of the 20th, when he went home, he was told that the "boy" had gone. The bag and blankets were missing. The matter was reported to the Police the following morning. The day before yesterday, he was passing the Cricket ground when he saw defendant on a car. He had him arrested and taken to the Central Police Station.

Defendant said that when he worked for prosecutor he was told by him, as he was doing his work, that he worked too quickly and when it was done slowly he was told that was not right. He was not able to give satisfaction. His mistress had beaten him three times on the face with a duster. His master then told him to get out. He did this, but told Mr. McKersie that he was going to bring an action against him for wages. His master then gave him the bag and blankets instead of wages.

Mr. McKersie denied this, and said the defendant had never applied for wages.

A constable spoke to finding the bag in defendant's cubicle at Yau-mati. The defendant told him that his master would not pay his wages, so he took the things away.

Defendant said he had always borne a good character, as could be testified by Mr. Silva. He did not intend to pawn the bag and its contents, but to return them when he got his wages.

Mrs. McKersie said the "boy" said nothing to her about wages. She went out in the afternoon and when she came back he had gone. She did not give him the bag and contents.

His Worship remarked that he did not believe what defendant had said, and he would have to go to prison for two months.

HONGKONG TRAMWAY COMPANY LIMITED.

The following is the approximate statement of the Hongkong Tramway Company's traffic receipts for the week ending July 28, 1917:—

	Receipts for week	Aggregate Receipts for 30 weeks
This Year: ...	$11,860	$400,156
Last Year: ...	17,172	420,137
Increase: ...	5,512	19,981

who do not at present hold even $5 worth of War Loans, to join the Association.

We accept any kinds of money besides Hongkong currency, namely, Shanghai notes, Straits Settlements notes, Yen, Sterling and Dividend Warrants.

We again call attention to the fact that members may at any time withdraw their investments, should they urgently require the money, and the same will be paid out at the rate of exchange ruling at the time of withdrawal if withdrawn in Hongkong dollars—or the same may be withdrawn in Straits dollars or the equivalent in sterling.

It has come to our knowledge that the Straits Government have declined to accept any more subscriptions from War Savings Associations owing to the fact, we imagine, that the total amount of their loan is nearly all taken up. We are pleased, however, to inform you that the Union Insurance Society of Canton, Ltd., have made arrangements whereby members of this Association can be accommodated to the extent of a further eight lakhs of Straits Settlements War Loans at 6 per cent.

No greater facilities can be offered than are offered by this Association and we shall be pleased to give anyone any further information required.

TO-DAY'S MISCELLANY.

E. G. K. writes to a Sydney paper as follows:—Playing auction bridge on Saturday with my wife as partner and my two daughters as opponents, we struck a combination of cards so remarkable as perhaps to be unique, and it would be interesting to know if any of your many readers who play this game have ever come across any combination to parallel with it. On my deal I found my hand to be composed of ace, king, and five other clubs, with queen and five small spades and declared "one club." The next make was "one diamond," my wife declaring "one royal," and the fourth player making it "two hearts." I then went "three royals" only to hear the player on my left go "four hearts," saying with glow and contrary to all etiquette of the game, "I've got a perfectly phenomenal hand." To cut a long story short, the declaration went up to "seven royals," which the other daughter doubled "just on principle." The result was a grand slam directly the dummy hand was exposed, it being evident that my partner and myself held every black card in the pack, and that on the first lead being trumped every trick must be ours. It is noteworthy that there was not a "no trump" declaration and that, had there been, the declarer must have lost every trick. The occurrence was in the eleventh hand played, two packs being in use, and regularly shuffled. That I should have been playing "for love" leaves a slightly bitter memory.

Of the many sharp contrasts between the idiosyncrasies of Europeans and Indians perhaps one of the most accentuated is their attitude towards courts of justice. Whereas the Englishman will put up with a great deal rather than bring his troubles before a judge or magistrate, the Indian appears to have an insatiable appetite for legal processes of all descriptions. This is borne out by the Report on the Administration of Civil Justice in the Central Provinces and B. Bar during the year 1916, which discloses a considerable increase in the volume of litigation, some seventeen thousand more suits having been instituted than in 1915.

Sir A. F. Robbins, London Correspondent of the Birmingham Daily Post, and one of the new knights, received congratulations from a host of friends, and particularly from journalists, among whom he is perhaps as well esteemed as any man in Fleet Street. He is a Cornishman, and received his training at Liskeard, his native town, where his first leader was written on the death of Napoleon III. I do not know (says a Daily News writer) whether he or his brother, Mr. Edmund Robbins, who lately completed his fortieth year in journalism, first came to London, but the new knight is, I should say, easily the doyen among the writers of London letters to English newspapers, and his first must certainly have been written a good deal more than 30 years since.

Dr. F. Robbins, a well-known New York physician, urges the abolition of the pocket-handkerchief, because he firmly believes it to be a source of infection long after a person has recovered from such diseases as infantile paralysis and even common cold. "The day will come," he says, "when the customary cotton rag is replaced by the cheap and clean Japanese paper napkin which is burned after it has been used. Infants and children are helpless against the rubbing of strange handkerchiefs over their perspiring and grimy faces. The public roller-towel of the past was innocuous as compared to the family pocket-handkerchief. Bitter experience will drive home the lesson that neglected nose, mouth, and throat are largely if not exclusively responsible for the ultimate crippling of the unfortunate victims of disease and ignorance."

COMPANY MEETING.

The United Asbestos Oriental Agency, Limited.

RESOLUTIONS.

The twenty-first ordinary meeting of the United Asbestos Oriental Agency, Limited, was held at the offices of Messrs. Well and Co. Ltd., (General Managers), this morning. Mr. H. Dodwell presided and there were also present, Messrs. Gordon Smith, A. Pichie, A. Nicolson and Mr. G. R. Edwards (Secretary).

The Chairman said:—Gentlemen, as it is past the hour for the meeting is called and there is a quorum present. I ask the Secretary to read the notice convening the meeting. The Secretary having read the notice, the Chairman said:—Gentlemen, the result of the year's trading shows an increase in profit on trading of some $7,300 against last year. Including 1917/1918 brought forward from last year there is $28,705 25 available for distribution, and I ask you will all approve of the resolution recommended in the notice. The year under review has been a good one, due partly to exceptional circumstances, but a much larger proportion of local shipping has been drawn for national service and other waters and it is consequently difficult to foresee the prospects for the 1917/1918 will be. There following the course adopted several other of our local companies, your General Managers have recommended that a sum not less than usual be carried over to next account. The sum due under sundry items is exceptionally large but as all been collected since the year were closed for the year, stock has been carefully checked by the Superintendent sample allowance made for recitation. It is unusually low, but this is partly due to the high exchange which it has necessarily taken in. It becomes of increasing difficulty to get delivery of material from America, but with purchases on the year General Managers consider the stock is sufficient for the needs of the Company's business. You will notice that it is used to contribute $2,000 to Charity, a suggestion that is sure will appeal to shareholders. I will, however, propose contribution separately after report and accounts have been adopted. I think, gentlemen, there is nothing more for me to say to propose the adoption of the report and accounts as presented.

Mr. Nicolson:—I beg to second resolution, Mr. Chairman. I think the shareholders can be gratulated on getting such a dividend this year, and I think our thanks are due to the General Managers and the staff the way in which they have the Company. I think it is a very good idea to present a small sum to the War Charities. I do think there is anything more I can add, for the Chairman has gone through most of the business. I beg to second the report.

The Chairman:—The adoption of the report and accounts has been proposed by myself and seconded by Mr. Nicolson and is carried before the meeting for discussion. There being no questions put the resolutions are carried. Those in favour? Carried unanimously.

Mr. Dodwell proposed that a contribution of $2,000 be made to War Charities.

Mr. Morton Smith:—I have pleasure in seconding that.

The Chairman:—That is proposed by myself and seconded by Mr. Morton Smith. Those in favour? Against? Carried unanimously. The only other business is the election of an Auditor.

Mr. Edwards:—I beg to propose that Mr. F. Maitland be elected auditor for the ensuing year at remuneration of $200.

Mr. Pichie:—I have much pleasure in seconding that.

The Chairman:—The election of Mr. F. Maitland as auditor for the ensuing year at a remuneration of $200 has been proposed.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

The Case of Interned Persons.

Calcutta, July 3.—The first meeting of the Bengal Legislative Council after the budget debates, was held on Tuesday at Government House, His Excellency the Governor presiding. There were seven resolutions on the agenda, three of which were postponed and five withdrawn, only two being discussed.

In reply to a question regarding the book entitled "Near Home," Mr. Kerr said the attention of the Government had been drawn to certain passages in the book which had been considered to be calculated to wound the feelings of Mahomedans. The book was originally published in England many years ago. It has been ascertained that twelve copies of 1910 editions were supplied to the Calcutta branch of the publishers and they have all been sold. The Government are taking steps to prevent the sale of further copies in this Presidency.

In reply to a series of questions regarding the persons interned under the Defence of India Act, Mr. Kerr said:—Applications by both relatives and lawyers to interview the persons dealt with under the Defence of India Act are freely made and granted. There is no general prohibition of such interviews. The interned persons have an opportunity of writing letters to their families and many of the relatives obtain information direct by personal interviews with the Additional Secretary. There has been no case of any person becoming insane during his compulsory domicile. There has recently been a case in which epileptic insanity was alleged, but after the detainee was brought to headquarters and kept under observation for some time, the Civil Surgeon held that the allegation was groundless. There has been one case of suicide and one case of death from fever. Several admissions regarding the revolutionary movement in Bengal have been made by persons participating in the same. No compulsion of any kind is used in recording statements. Each person concerned is invited to submit a written explanation either in substitution or in addition to his oral explanation, but in the majority of cases advantage is not taken of that opportunity. These explanations are usually considered by the local Government. There is no bar to detainees consulting lawyers or relatives in jail, but at the time when the charges are put to them they are invited to give their own answers. It is not a fact that persons dealt with under the Defence of India Act are dressed in prison dress. The use of handcuffs is also prohibited in such cases. Detainees are sometimes kept in cells during their period of detention.

Regarding the question about the detention of a Bengali lady under the Defence of India Act, Mr. Kerr said the individual in question has been dealt with under the Lahore India Ordinance. She was found to be assisting the abducting Bengal revolutionaries. Every endeavour was made to place her in the hands of philanthropic bodies or with her relatives, but the latter were not prepared to take her in their charge, and she refused to stay with any of the former. She has accordingly at her own request been interned in jail.

In reply to a question regarding civil servants on military duty, Mr. Kerr said:—On January 1, 1916, seven members of the Indian Civil Service in the Bengal cadre were on military duty. During 1916, nineteen officers were permitted to join the Indian Army Reserve of Officers. All these twenty-six officers are still on military duty.

A Centenarian's Death.

Mr. Nellie Jones died recently at Abergrave, South Wales, aged 100.

By Mr. Edwards and seconded by Mr. Pichie. Those in favour? Those against? Carried unanimously. That is all the business, gentlemen; thank you. Dividend warrants are now ready.

CANTON NEWS.

Proposed Base for the Navy.

Our Canton correspondent writes under date of July 30 as follows:—

Twenty five machine-guns, along with 400,000 cartridges, have arrived from Japan, having been ordered by Fong Sing-to, a Divisional Commander of the Yunnan troops.

An order for 30,000 uniforms has been given to a tailor by Chan Kai-yu, a Divisional Commander of Yunnan troops, and also Defence Commissioner of Suikwan.

The Governor and the Tukwan has ordered the Foreign Intelligence Department in Chin San (four miles north of Macao) to be re-established and have appointed Chong San-kin as Commissioner.

Sun Yat-sen has proposed that Yee Lum harbour (south of Hsianan island) should be the base for the Navy, but the Tukwan has declared that it is too shallow for big ships. Therefore Kap Tze Harbour has been selected.

The Mandate ordering an exchange of officers between the Governor of Kwangtung and Kwangsi has not yet been received. Chu Hing-lan, Governor of Canton, has declared that he would rather resign than accept the post in Kwangsi.

As to the public park in Whampoa it is now the residence of Sun Yat-sen and important members of the Kuomintang the Tukwan has ordered that besides the guards that are already stationed there, one battalion of King Wai troops is to be posted at the various approaches to Whampoa.

On hearing that Tam Yuen-hoi, Tukwan of Hunan, intends to resign, Sun Yat-sen, the Tukwan and the Civil Governor despatched an urgent telegram requesting him to remain.

The Education Commissioner has requested the Tukwan and the Governor to ask the Yunnan holders to move out of the schools as when the summer holidays expire the schools must be reopened.

AFTER THE TSAR.

Soldiers' and Sailors' Demand.

London, June 15.—A message from Petrograd gives details of the action of the crew of the Dreadnoughts Republic and Gangut and the cruiser Daria on June 11, when they passed a resolution demanding that the ex-Tsar and his family should be sent to Kronstadt.

The crew of the Gangut gave notice to the Provisional Government that the ex-Tsar must be given over to the revolutionaries in order to be sentenced. The Government took no notice of the request of the crew of the vessel, which is attached to Kronstadt.

The Soldiers' Council emphatically repeated the demand, threatening force if it were disregarded. The Government then stated that it could not concede the Gangut's extraordinary desires.

Simultaneously the Petrograd Soldiers' Council expressed a desire that the Tsar should be condemned and forced to labour in the mines. In consequence of this the Government ceased the garrison at Tsarkoye Seloe (the Tsar's residence) to be strengthened.

CANADIAN CONSCRIPTION.

Sir Robert Borden Defends It.

Ottawa, Canada, June 29.—Sir Robert Borden, Prime Minister of Canada, asked to do so by the Evening Post, gladly used its columns to outline to the citizens of the United States the general scope and character of the proposed military service law of Canada, as follows:—

"Voluntary recruiting in Canada has been far from a failure. It has indeed been a tremendous success. Every true Canadian reflects with pride on its marvellous achievements. Though many thousand miles from the seat of war, more than 402,000 have enlisted for service and more than 325,000 have gone overseas. Our fighting strength now at the front continues, undiminished in number, unexcelled in equipment, unsurpassed in morale. Glorious deeds of our sons on many a battle field have become the most treasured memory of the Canadian people.

"Under the unparalleled demand of a war like this, there comes a time in the history of every nation that commences with the voluntary system, when the resources of such a system are exhausted and when a call must be made upon those to whom compulsion alone appeals. This becomes necessary chiefly, it is true, from the standpoint of military requirements, but as well from the standpoint of economic necessities at home. That time has arrived in Canada.

"The Military Service bill looks to the securing of an additional 100,000 men. Throughout the bill the supreme, unending purpose of securing these men for maintenance and supporting our overseas forces, is constantly kept in mind. Concurrently with this primary object, the bill is designed to provide for the sustenance of essential industries at home, by such a system of selection as takes the man who can be spared and leaves the man who cannot be spared. It is estimated that there are 700,000 men available from which the selection of 100,000 is to be made.

"The bill as now submitted provides for the application of the same principles in every province in the Dominion. It contains no suggestion of discrimination and no trace of partisanship. Though its terms have been made public for more than two weeks there has as yet appeared no criticism on either of these grounds. Objections to the measure are for the most part objections to conscription as a principle. So far as they have any force in this country, they indicate only legitimate constitutional opposition, and are the inevitable outgrowth of that freedom of opinion we in Canada enjoy. If and when the bill becomes law, Canadians of every province and race will loyally observe its provisions.

"The proposals of the Canadian Government have been prepared with due regard to the provisions of three enactments constituting the present Military Service law of Great Britain. Advantage has been taken of the experience acquired in the enforcement of the British enactments. We, as they, provide for the establishment of local tribunals for the trial of applications for exemption.

"Our tribunals, however, are smaller, each being two in number, and their members are chosen by our judges and by a non-partisan board, selected by the Canadian Parliament. Appeals are freely allowed from these tribunals to appeal tribunals composed solely of judges and a limited right of appeal still remains to a central appeal judge whose decision is final. In this way it is hoped to insure the uniform application of the measure in every part of Canada.

"It is proposed by our military service act to make only the performance of duty an obligation of law. The spirit of equal sacrifice which the bill embodies will pervade every citizen of this Dominion, will strengthen the resolve of our people in the critical days which lie between us and victory, and will, we hope, harmonize and unify our efforts with those of our great neighbour and ally, the United States of America."

COMPANY MEETING.

The United Asbestos Oriental Agency, Limited.

(VERBATIM.)

The twenty-first ordinary annual meeting of the United Asbestos Oriental Agency, Ltd., was held at the offices of Messrs. Dodwell and Co. Ltd., (General Managers) this morning. Mr. S. H. Dodwell presided and there were also present, Messrs. G. Morton Smith, A. Ritchie, A. Denison and Mr. G. R. Edwards (Secretary).

The Chairman said:—Gentlemen, as it is past the hour for which the meeting is called and as there is a quorum present, I will ask the Secretary to read the notice convening the meeting.

The Secretary having read the notice,

The Chairman said:—Gentlemen, The result of the year's working shows an increase in profit on trading of some $7,300 as against last year. Including $1,989.24 brought forward from last year there is $28,705.25 available for distribution, and I trust you will all approve of the allocation recommended in the report. The year under review has been a good one, due partly to exceptional circumstances. Recently a much larger proportion of local shipping has been withdrawn for national service in other waters and it is consequently difficult to foresee what the prospects for the year 1917/1918 will be. Therefore, following the course adopted by several other of our local Companies, your General Managers have recommended that a larger sum than usual be carried forward to next account. The amount due under Sundry Debtors is exceptionally large but it has all been collected since the books were closed for the year. The stock has been carefully checked by the Superintendent and ample allowance made for depreciation. It is unusually small, but this is partly due to the high exchange at which it has necessarily been taken in. It becomes of course increasingly difficult to get early delivery of material from home and from America, but together with purchases on the way your General Managers consider the stock is sufficient for the purposes of the Company's business. You will notice that it is proposed to contribute $2,000 to War Charities, a suggestion that I am sure will appeal to shareholders. I will, however, propose this contribution separately after the report and accounts have been adopted. I think, gentlemen, there is nothing more for me to say. I beg to propose the adoption of the report and accounts as presented.

Mr. Denison:—I beg to second that resolution, Mr. Chairman. I think the shareholders can be congratulated on getting such a good dividend this year, and I think our thanks are due to the General Managers and the staff on the way in which they have run the Company. I think it is a very good idea to present a small sum to the War Charities. I do not think there is anything more that I can add, for the Chairman has gone through most of the items. I beg to second the report.

The Chairman:—The adoption of the report and accounts has been proposed by myself and seconded by Mr. Denison and is now before the meeting for discussion. There being no questions I will put the resolutions to the meeting. Those in favour? Those against? Carried unanimously. I now beg to propose that a contribution of $2,000 be made to the War Charities.

Mr. Morton Smith:—I have much pleasure in seconding that. The Chairman:—That is proposed by myself and seconded by Mr. Morton Smith. Those in favour? Against? Carried unanimously. The only other business is the election of an auditor.

Mr. Edwards:—I beg to propose that Mr. F. Maitland be elected auditor for the ensuing year at a remuneration of $200.

Mr. Ritchie:—I have much pleasure in seconding that.

The Chairman:—The election of Mr. F. Maitland as auditor for the ensuing year at a remuneration of $200 has been proposed

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

The Case of Interned Persons.

Calcutta, July 3.—The first meeting of the Bengal Legislative Council after the budget debates, was held on Tuesday at Government House, His Excellency the Governor presiding. There were seven resolutions on the agenda, three of which were postponed and five withdrawn, only two being discussed.

In reply to a question regarding the book entitled "Near Home," Mr. Kerr said the attention of the Government had been drawn to certain passages in the book which had been considered to be calculated to wound the feelings of Mahomedans. The book was originally published in England many years ago. It has been ascertained that twelve copies of 1910 editions were supplied to the Calcutta branch of the publishers and they have all been sold. The Government are taking steps to prevent the sale of further copies in this Presidency.

In reply to a series of questions regarding the persons interned under the Defence of India Act, Mr. Kerr said:—Applications by both relatives and lawyers to interview the persons dealt with under the Defence of India Act are freely made and granted. There is no general prohibition of such interviews. The interned persons have an opportunity of writing letters to their families and many of the relatives obtain information direct by personal interviews with the Additional Secretary. There has been no case of any person becoming insane during his compulsory domicile. There has recently been a case in which epileptic insanity was alleged, but after the detainee was brought to headquarters and kept under observation for some time, the Civil Surgeon held that the allegation was groundless. There has been one case of suicide and one case of death from fever. Several admissions regarding the revolutionary movement in Bengal have been made by persons participating in the same. No compulsion of any kind is used in recording statements. Each person concerned is invited to submit a written explanation either in substitution or in addition to his oral explanation, but in the majority of cases advantage is not taken of that opportunity. These explanations are finally considered by the local Government. There is no bar to detainees consulting lawyers or relatives in jail, but at the time when the charges are put to them they are invited to give their own answers. It is not a fact that persons dealt with under the Defence of India Act are dressed in prison dress. The use of handcuffs is also prohibited in such cases. Detainees are sometimes kept in cells during their period of detention.

Regarding the question about the detention of a Bengali lady under the Defence of India Act, Mr. Kerr said the individual in question has been dealt with under the Indian Civil Service in the Bengal cadre was on military duty. During 1916, nineteen officers were permitted to join the Indian Army Reserve of Officers. All these twenty-six officers are still on military duty.

Replying to a question regarding civil servants on military duty, Mr. Kerr said:—On January 1, 1916, seven members of the Indian Civil Service in the Bengal cadre were on military duty. During 1916, nineteen officers were permitted to join the Indian Army Reserve of Officers. All these twenty-six officers are still on military duty.

A Centenarian's Death. Mrs. Nellie Jones died recently at Abergrave, South Wales, aged 103.

by Mr. Edwards and seconded by Mr. Ritchie. Those in favour? Those against? Carried unanimously. That is all the business, gentlemen; thank you. Dividend warrants are now ready.

CANTON NEWS.

Proposed Base for the Navy.

Our Canton correspondent writes under date of July 30 as follows:—

Twenty-five machine-guns, along with 400,000 cartridges, have arrived from Japan, having been ordered by Fong Siang-to, a Divisional Commander of the Yunnan troops.

An order for 30,000 uniforms has been given to a tailor by Chuan Kai-yu, a Divisional Commander of Yunnan troops, and also Defence Commissioner of Suikwan.

The Governor and the Tukwan has ordered the Foreign Inter-course Department in Chiao Su (four miles north of Macao) to be re-established and have appointed Chong San-kin as Commissioner. Sun Yat-sen has proposed that Yee Lum harbour (south of Hainan island) should be the base for the Navy, but the Tukwan has declared that it is too shallow for big ships. Therefore Kap Tze Harbour has been selected.

The Mandate ordering an exchange of offices between the Governors of Kwangtung and Kwangsi has not yet been received. Chu Hing-lai, Governor of Canton, has declared that he would rather resign than accept the post in Kwangsi.

As to the public park in Whampoa it is now the residence of Sun Yat-sen and important members of the Kuomintang the Tukwan has ordered that besides the guards that are already stationed there, one battalion of King Wai troops is to be posted at the various approaches to Whampoa.

On hearing that Tam Yuen-hoi, Tukwan of Hunan, intends to resign, Sun Yat-sen, the Tukwan and the Civil Governor despatched an urgent telegram requesting him to remain.

The Education Commissioner has requested the Tukwan and the Governor to ask the Yunnan soldiers to move out of the schools as when the summer holidays expire the schools must be reopened.

AFTER THE TSAR.

Soldiers' and Sailors' Demand.

London, June 15.—A message from Petrograd gives details of the action of the crews of the Dreadnought Republic and Gangut, the cruiser Umana on June 11, when they passed a resolution demanding that the ex-Tsar and his family should be sent to Kronstadt.

The crew of the Gangut gave notice to the Provisional Government that the ex-Tsar must be given over to the revolutionaries in order to be sentenced. The Government took no notice of the request of the crew of the vessel, which is attached to Kronstadt.

The Soldiers' Council emphatically repeated the demand, threatening force if it were disregarded. The Government then stated that it could not accede to the Gangut's extraordinary desires. Simultaneously the Petrograd Soldiers' Council expressed a desire that the Tsar should be condemned and forced to labour in the mines. In consequence of this the Government caused the garrison at Tsarkoye Seloe (the Tsar's residence) to be strengthened.

CANADIAN CONSCRIPTION.

Sir Robert Borden Defends It.

Ottawa, Canada, June 29.—Sir Robert Borden, Prime Minister of Canada, asked to do so by the Evening Post, gladly used its columns to outline to the citizens of the United States the general scope and character of the proposed military service law of Canada, as follows:—

"Voluntary recruiting in Canada has been far from a failure. It has indeed been a tremendous success. Every true Canadian reflects with pride on its marvellous achievements. Though many thousand miles from the rest of war, more than 402,000 have enlisted for service and more than 325,000 have gone overseas. Our fighting strength now at the front conditions, undiminished in number, unexcelled in equipment, unsurpassed in morale. Glorious deeds of our sons on many a battle field have become the most treasured memory of the Canadian people.

"Under the unparalleled demand of a war like this, there comes a time in the history of every nation that commences with the voluntary system, when the resources of such a system are exhausted and when a call must be made upon those to whom compulsion alone appeals. This becomes necessary chiefly, it is true, from the standpoint of military requirements, but as well from the standpoint of economic necessities at home. That time has arrived in Canada.

"The Military Service bill looks to the securing of an additional 100,000 men. Throughout the bill the supreme, unending purpose of securing these men for maintenance and supporting our overseas forces, is constantly kept in mind. Concurrently with this primary object, the bill is designed to provide for the sustenance of essential industries at home, by such a system of selection as takes the man who can be spared and leaves the man who cannot be spared. It is estimated that there are 700,000 men available from which the selection of 100,000 is to be made.

"The bill as now submitted provides for the application of the same principles in every province in the Dominion. It contains no suggestion of discrimination and no trace of partisanship. Though its terms have been made public for more than two weeks there has as yet appeared no criticism on either of these grounds. Objections to the measure are for the most part objections to conscription as a principle. So far as they have any force in this country, they indicate only legitimate constitutional opposition and are the inevitable outgrowth of that freedom of opinion we in Canada enjoy. If and when the bill becomes law, Canadians of every province and race will loyally observe its provisions.

"The proposals of the Canadian Government have been prepared with due regard to the provisions of three enactments constituting the present Military Service law of Great Britain. Advantage has been taken of the experience acquired in the enforcement of the British enactments. We, as they, provide for the establishment of local tribunals for the trial of applications for exemption.

WAR'S EFFECT ON SHIPPING.

Why Complete Control is Necessary.

London, July 30.

The Ministry of Shipping has issued a detailed statement showing the sacrifices incurred by British shipping in connection with the war. It shows that fifty per cent. of the tonnage previously engaged in distant trading to foreign countries has been brought home. Fourteen millions of ocean-going tonnage are serving Britain and Ireland at the present time, six and a half million tons of which are engaged in war service. A very substantial amount of shipping has been assigned to meet the needs of the Allies, both for munitions and foodstuffs. The situation has now reached a stage necessitating the complete control of all shipping, in order to ensure the best national employment of every vessel and to divert to the nation the high profits arising out of the war conditions. Except for a few vessels engaged in work vital to the Colonies, and vessels chartered by France and Italy, the Government has requisitioned ninety-seven per cent. of British ocean-going tonnage. All the liners were requisitioned. The profits which had been built up in distant waters by British enterprise had had to be abandoned to neutral shipping. The withdrawal of ships had injured many export trades, particularly to India and the Far East and also the distant Colonies, one effect of which was that the market value of neutral vessels was double the British value. After describing the huge reductions in commercial imports and exports, the document states:—"We have, therefore, sacrificed ruthlessly the needs of our industry and commerce for a temporary increase of imports to our Allies with no substitute for the loss of permanent trade."

THE WESTERN FRONT.

British Aeroplanes Caught in a Storm.

London, July 30.

Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig states:—"We raided last night the neighbourhood of Lombardya. The enemy's artillery is more active in the neighbourhood of Armentieres. Our aeroplanes bombed an aerodrome, two important railway stations and an ammunition depot on Saturday night, causing fires and explosions. Operations continued last night. There was great aerial activity until ten o'clock in the morning, when severe thunderstorms prevented further flying. Many English aeroplanes were caught in the storm and four did not return. We brought down four enemy aeroplanes and drove down two. Six of ours are missing, four of which were lost in the storm."

ACTIVITIES ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT.

London, July 30.

A Russian wireless official message states:—"South of Huzestia, we repulsed an attempt to cross the Braxo River. We repulsed the enemy after a stubborn fight near Zalimick. The enemy, persistently attacking, slightly pressed us back in the regions of Xviniaz, Kiselie and Steova. The enemy compelled us to retire in the Carpathians to the spot at Kameral and Moldav. The enemy pressed us back after daylong fighting in the direction of Mycoiza, on the Romanian front. A Zeppelin dropped twenty large bombs on Oeland Island. In the Baltic, enemy hydroplanes dropped bombs without success on the islands of Tsereland and Argensburg and in the Gulf of Riga."

THE PREMIER ON THE WAR OUTLOOK.

London, July 30.

Mr. Lloyd George, in presenting a gift to the Chairman of the Press Gallery of the House of Commons, on behalf of the recipient's Press colleagues, made a brief but important reference to the war situation. He said:—"I have just returned from Paris, where I had a useful talk with the leading representatives of the French Press. I am glad to be able to state that the spirit of the French is better than I have ever known it to be. This is remarkable, because it is the end of the third year of war, which meant a great deal more to France than it did to us, because they have suffered horribly and the enemy is still in their country, also because a sense of discouragement might have been expected from the great collapse of the Russian Army. But we have received information that Russia will recover and be as formidable as she ever was." (Applause.)

RECONSTRUCTION IN RUSSIA.

London, July 30.

A Petrograd message received in Paris states that the Cadets' condition of co-operation with the Government is that the war must be fought to a finish in agreement with the Allies; that all agreements with the Allies must be adhered to; that there must be war to the knife against anarchy; and that the Constituent Assembly must settle all social reforms. The Bourgeois Gazette says that the Government has refused the demand for M. Tolstoy's resignation; consequently negotiations have been broken off. The Government is reported to be negotiating for the inclusion of leaders of commerce and industry. The latter object to outside interference with the Government and demand that the Government undertake social reforms prior to the convocation of the Constituent Assembly. They insist that Russia's foreign policy shall coincide with the Allies.

THE ARIADNE TORPEDOED.

London, July 30.

The Admiralty announces that the Ariadne has been torpedoed and sunk. Thirty-eight men were killed by the explosion.

ANOTHER NAVAL AERIAL RAID.

London, July 30.

The Admiralty announces that naval airmen on Saturday night dropped several tons of bombs on Bruges, Thourout, Middlekerke and Ghisteller, with good results. Numerous explosions were seen. All the machines returned safely.

GERMAN PROPERTY SOLD.

"Lysholt" Fetches Thirty-seven Thousand Dollars.

This morning, at the Sale Rooms of Mr. G. P. Lamert, the first German property to be sold in Hongkong since the completion of the liquidation of enemy interests, was put up for auction, when the leasehold property known as "Lysholt," situated at the Peak, was sold to Mr. Ho Kom-tong for the sum of $37,000.

Bidding was not very spirited and was started by Mr. Henry Humphreys at the figure of $20,000. From this, it rose fairly rapidly in thousands to $35,000, the bidding being between Mr. Humphreys and Mr. Ho Kom-tong. After this figure had been reached, Mr. Ho Kom-tong went steadily up, and it was eventually knocked down to him at the figure stated above. The property was sold by the order of the liquidators of Jebsen and Company and Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist were solicitors for the interests of the vendors.

THE LOST PROVINCES.

Why Alsace-Lorraine Must be Restored to France.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P.

Writes in the Daily Chronicle:—"A few Sundays ago I stood before the statue of Strasbourg in the Place de la Concorde, and there I realised the dream of 47 years; the dream that some day or other it might be given to me to do something for the liberation of Alsace-Lorraine from the yoke of Germany. I remember with a poignancy that has never relaxed, the feeling of horror and almost of despair the moment when this crime was committed against the fundamental right of every population to choose its own government and its own country. If at that time England had not been under the domination of German influences I cannot but believe even now that we should have made a protest against such a violation of a fundamental law of liberty and national right; but we made no protest, and France resented and justly resented for a generation afterwards our abandonment of her in this her impotence and despair. We committed the crime of deserting Alsace-Lorraine once; we must not repeat the crime a second time."

I have been so haunted by this recollection of the tragedy of these two lost provinces that I have twice visited them; and everything I saw and heard only confirmed tenfold my old anguish and my old convictions. When any of the people realised that as Englishmen and an ardent friend they could trust me, they told me cautiously the maintenance of their love of France, of their hatred of their rulers and oppressors. But it was not till I read a book by Miss Betham Edwards, "Hearts of Alsace," and still more it was not till I had made the acquaintance of M. Paul Helmer, that I realised all the nobility, all the magnificence, all the splendid tenacity of the struggle in both provinces for the maintenance of their French nationality. I make bold to say that there is no more heroic struggle for liberty in the whole history of the world. And yet it is one of the tragedies of Alsace that there is no story so little known."

There are two causes for this. The first cause was the compulsory silence of France; the second, the still more compulsory silence of Alsace. Gambetta, in one of the last speeches of his life, gave the word to France as to the true attitude she should take up on the question: "Y'en a pas un jour; n'en parlez pas jamais; Be it ever in our thoughts; never on our lips. It was a wise saying; for France required nearly half a century of steady preparation before she could be in a position ever to face the successful and powerful bully that had thus torn her provinces from her bleeding side. It was the policy dictated as it was thought by prudence which was followed by all the successors of Gambetta in the government of France. A few ardent patriots—the late M. Paul Deschamps at their head—insisted on keeping the memory of the lost provinces alive, and yearly made their solemn pilgrimages and their eloquent protest at the base of that statue of Strasbourg from which I spoke the other day; but they were regarded as imprudent and premature."

On the other hand, silence was compulsory on the Alsatians. Surrounded on all sides by German immigrants who had been brought into the country to replace those children of France who had left the country, they were surrounded by the ubiquitous German spy, and every imprudent word was calculated to land them in gaol.

Now it is this silence on both sides of the frontier that has hidden the truth from the world. Something like a thick veil has been spread between the lost provinces and the world. One might even say that the Alsatian Lorrainers were forgotten by the world; and above all, some of them might imagine that they were forgotten by France. It is this fact, that adds such splendour to the tenacity, the courage, and the nobility of their resistance. The people of these provinces, especially the Alsatians, have something of the dear characteristics of the Boer. The Boer never talked of the resistance he was prepared to give to defend the liberties of his country till the fatal hour came; in the meantime he drilled his men, he bought his big cannon, he stored up his ammunition, and it took the most powerful Empire in the world three years to beat two little Republics with less population than two of our great towns. Similarly the Alsatian Lorrainer held his peace, and thought his own thoughts in the secrecy of his heart; within the closed doors of his home. If ever there was a glowing example of what heights and depths passive resistance can reach, it was given by these two provinces.

Neither in public nor in private would either the Alsatian or the Lorrainer recognise even the existence of the hated ruler. If the Germans gave a concert no Alsatian or Lorrainer was there. If the Germans frequented a park no Alsatian or Lorrainer was there. No German was admitted to an Alsatian or Lorrainer home. If any one of the population accepted any office or other from the German, quietly, without any publication of the fact, and yet inflexibly as the swish of the guillotine, he was expelled from all association with the people he was held to have deserted and betrayed. Nay, it was carried to this length: that if a young girl yielded to the seductions of a German beau sabreur and married him, quietly, without any public notification, as inflexibly again as by the swish of the guillotine, she was expelled from all intercourse with the people she had abandoned.

The boycott, in fact, was carried to such a length that even in the big apartment houses, where the different flats were occupied by Germans or Alsatians or Lorrainers, the two passed each other by without a word, without even a bow. What a terrific example of the silent, inflexible, ruthless, impregnable revolt of a nation against an oppressor. No such stern boycott exists in history. And he it remembered that everything was done to break it down. The army was everywhere, and ready—as at Zabern—to smother any manifestation of the silent revolt. The offices were all open to the Alsatian or the Lorrainer that proved recreant. Terror tried its worst; bribery tried its best; all in vain. Every expedient, refined or brutal, was attempted to tear up the obstinate French nationality from its very roots. In the school the child had compulsorily to learn the language of the conqueror; he was sent when he came of military age for three years to the German barracks—to be trained to take arms against the country he loved for the country he hated. And yet the French language not only survived, but even grew stronger.

M. Paul Helmer told me this story of the Alsatian resistance last week several times over. If ever the history of a national struggle or a national temperament were written on the face of any man, these things were to be read in the face of M. Helmer. He is just over 40 years of age, but his hair is white. There is a strange, almost Quaker-like tranquility in the face; the light blue eyes speak of gentleness; there is a suggestion in all of bitter suffering, of hope deferred, of incessant and painful conflict against overwhelming odds; but all this is accompanied by the "soft invincibility" of which Carlyle wrote on the tomb of his wife.

He is a resident of Colmar and an advocate by profession. The Bar has been in many oppressed countries the forum on which the battles of liberty have been fought. O'Connor in Ireland, Gambetta in France, has each in his turn brought down tyrannies by the voice of the lawyer; this is the part M. Helmer has played in the life of Alsace. It was he who appeared before the merciless tribunals of the Germans to plead the cause of the Abbe Wekerle, of Hansi, the caricaturist, of every true Alsatian who had brought himself within the wide sweep of the German system. And his speeches have been the appeals to the conscience of the struggle for freedom, and helped to strengthen and perpetuate it.

THE MONEY MARKET.

Messrs. Montagu and Company's Report.

Messrs. Samuel Montagu and Co., in their report dated June 7, state:—

Gold.

The Bank of England gold reserve against its note issue shows a decrease of £16,745, as compared with last week's return. Gold to the value of $7,844,000 has been engaged for shipment in New York, mainly for Japan. The West African output for April 1917 amounted to £123,825 as compared with £135,976 in April 1916 and £58,727 in March 1917.

Silver.

The price has ruled a fraction higher during the week and was quoted to-day 38 1/4 d., the highest touched since 16th February last when the same price was recorded. There is no change in the conditions reported last week, shortness of supplies rendering the market sensitive to any enquiry which may be experienced.

It is stated in an official French report that, owing to the increasing demand for silver coins, the total mined in 1916 amounted to 154,283,50 francs in nominal value, representing a total 78.7 per cent. above that of 1915, and a weight of silver exceeding 20,700,000 fine ounces. The report adds that the large extent of this coinage, which is applied to replace small paper notes in circulation, ought to maintain public confidence in the use of the small notes issued by the Chambers of Commerce as a temporary expedient during the war.

As a result of entry into the World-conflict the United States of America commenced to make purchases for coinage, the extent of which may possibly gather strength as military forces of the States increase in number. Financial America of May 17 gives the quantity purchased, during the short period that has elapsed, as 3,000,000 ounces, working out at the rate of about 400,000 ounces a week, and states that it is the practice for American military and naval forces upon foreign service, as well as in some localities upon the Pacific Coast, to be paid in coin, gold for the larger, and silver for smaller sums.

The last three Indian Currency returns received by cable give details in lace of rupees as follows:—

Two days before the war he left Colmar; if he had remained he would now, like so many of the other ardent patriots of his city and country, be in a German prison.

Such, in epitome, is the case of Alsace and of Lorraine. I can regard with nothing but contempt any British democrat who would contemplate leaving this noble people without the liberation for which they have struggled so long.

CHANG FUN'S WEALTH.

His Business Ramifications.

To his qualities as a filibuster, military swashbuckler which had made the name of Chang Fun one to inspire awe and fear into the hearts of the people, still his abject flight for safety on the fateful twelfth of July, must be added a natural-born business acumen of no mean order, says the Peking Daily News. An investigation into the extent of Chang Fun's property has revealed extensive business ramifications not hitherto suspected.

In addition to defrauding the Government Exchequer annually to the tune of some $4,000,000, the fallen lord of Hanchow is the proud owner of palatial mansions in Tientsin, Tientsin, Tientsin, Peking, and Hanchow. He is also a large shareholder in several public ventures in various cities, ranging from banks to beer breweries; and a partner in several goldsmiths' establishments in Tientsin and Peking. He had large deposits in the German Bank in Tientsin, but since the capture of that place by the Japanese, he has been unable to withdraw his deposits, the fate of which is uncertain.

In his former stronghold at Hanchow he has stored up a large quantity of opium, gold bars, silver sycee, pearls, jade ware, jewels, curios, and ancient calligraphy and drawings. A rough computation of Chang Fun's property places the total value of his property at no less than $30,000,000.

The following particulars will be found of interest. The questions of the disposal of Chang Fun's property is no less absorbing than that of the disposal of his person.

Investigations have already been made to ascertain the value of Chang Fun's estate all over the country. Like most of the Commanders of Chinese troops during the Manchurian regime, Chang Fun accumulated his enormous fortune by rendering false accounts of military expenditures, and according to a certain reliable source he had pocketed at least an amount of $4,000,000 per annum from the grants alone made to him by the Central Government to defray the military upkeep of the pig-tailed soldiers, who never ceased to make trouble on the Tientsin-Pukow Railway and the districts around the line. All like and other collectables in Hanchow and its vicinity were regarded as his private property and all collections were remitted to the coffers of the "Ta-shai."

He possesses spacious and magnificent mansions in Tientsin, Tientsin, Tientsin, Peking, and Hanchow, of which the most imposing is in the German Concession in Tientsin. He is a large shareholder of the Bank of Communications, the Nan-Shen Railway, the cement, soap, match and ironworks companies of Tientsin, the Afforestation Association of Kiangsi, the Tientsin Chingcheng Bank, the Yachuan-shan Brewery, and scores of other great industrial and commercial enterprises. He has a large amount of premium bonds and domestic bonds of various years.

He is a partner in several newly-established large goldsmiths' shops at Tientsin and Peking, such as Hengli and Co., at Tientsin, the Wenhu Co. at Kuangyinhai, and the Paoshan Co. in Chupashih Street, Peking. Formerly, he had large deposits in the German Bank in Tientsin, but since the occupation by the Japanese of that German leased port he has not yet been able to withdraw his deposits.

Chang Fun expressed his disgust at the unreliability of foreign banks, and has since deposited all his funds in Chinese goldsmiths' shops. In Hanchow he has stored up a large quantity of opium, gold bars, silver sycee, pearls, jade, jewels, curious and ancient calligraphy and drawings. A rough estimate shows that the value of his property is no less than $30,000,000. In his native province of Kiangsi, many huge buildings have been erected by him. In Nanchang City there are sixteen large buildings within his compounds, in which there are beautifully cultivated gardens, pavilions,

REPRISALS.

The Futility of Verbal Rebuke.

The former Berlin correspondent of the Navy writes:—

Few people who read the recent debate in the House of Lords on the question of reprisals will disagree with the comment of the "Naval and Military Record" that on this occasion the Upper House did not represent the opinion of the country. The Government was taken to task for having authorised the air raid on Freiburg in retaliation for the sinking of hospital ships, and great play was made with the casualties which are said to have occurred among the civilian population. Fortunately Lord Curzon and Lord Milner put up a vigorous defence on behalf of the policy which actuated this expedition, though it was only too clear that the speakers on the other side wielded a good deal of influence in the House. This is not the place to consider the ethics of the reprisal system. Rightly or wrongly a overwhelming majority in this country sympathises with the view that the Germans ought to be made to pay for their abominable crimes, and thinks that far too little has been attempted in this direction hitherto. It is easy to deliver homilies from the comfortable seclusion of the Upper House, and to "reprobate in the severest terms" any practical attempt to deter the Huns from continuing their infamies. They are quite impervious to verbal rebuke; indeed, they positively enjoy it, for they construe it as proof that their violence has not been without effect. There is not a tittle of evidence to show that the millions of words, expended in condemnation of their past atrocities have made the least impression on the criminals. On the other hand, it can be proved that on more than one occasion the fear of retaliatory action has prevented them from carrying into effect certain misdeeds which they had contemplated. The Government could give some interesting information on this point if it would.

The only fault which most people have found with the Freiburg reprisal was that it was of much too mild a character to fit the case. A crime horrible as the murder of sick and wounded men is not adequately avenged by a single air raid. It is all very well to say that reprisals fail to touch the really guilty parties, and only fail on the innocent. The German people, by their frantic applause of every enormity perpetrated by their rulers during the war, have made themselves accomplices of those rulers, and as such cannot justly complain when they are made to feel the penalty. This, however, is not the most vital consideration. Reprisals are only justified when there is a reasonable expectation that they will prevent repetition of the acts which gave rise to them. Whether this isolated attack on Freiburg will have the desired effect remains to be seen. It might have been more to the point had we given the German Government and people plain warning that the first execution of their threat against hospital ships would be instantly followed by the bombardment of every German town within reach of our airmen. From long experience of the German temperament I should say that it is peculiarly susceptible to this sort of argument.

baths, fish ponds, rookeries, etc., etc. In the compound there is a big pavilion with all kinds of rare flowers and trees planted around it. The people of that province have been trying hard to obtain this huge building for the Girl's Normal School.

The total amount of his deposits in various parts is $18,300,000. It was first declared by General Tsan that Chang Fun's property should be confiscated, but owing to the intervention of certain influential personages, the question has not been discussed.

FROM THE PULPIT.

Burden-Bearing and Forgiveness.

Notes of a sermon by the Rev. J. Kirk Macdonald at Union Church on Sunday morning:—
"I have not made thee to serve with incense, nor wearied thee with offerings, nor wearied thee with thine iniquities. I, even I, am He that blot out thy transgressions for mine own sake, and I will not remember thy sins."—Isaiah 43:23-26.

Three clear suggestions from this profound and beautiful passage we shall consider.

1. The lightness of Divine service.

2. The Divine burden in human sin.

3. The right of the burden-bearer to forgive.

As to the first note, the words "I have not made thee to serve with offerings, nor wearied thee with incense." The whole section is a complaint against Israel's forgetfulness of God, lack of loyalty and stunting of service:—

"Thou hast not called upon Me, O Jacob, but thou hast been weary of Me, O Israel." And yet the service was not burdensome. Men think it is, and often make it so for one another, but our Saviour said "My yoke is easy," and He was offering His easy yoke in place of the grievous burdens with which the priestly classes of His time had loaded the shoulders of the people. It is the standing error of our humanity to think that whatever God requires is an exaction, a hardship. Holiness made by men's hands are served by painful self-immolations, propitiated by costly gifts. They tell of the natural theology of the human heart, which creates a passion like its own instincts and its hard experience at the hands of fellow-men. The very word religion suggests exaction and restraint more than anything else to the average mind. Religion appears to be to most just the great interference, the maker of demands. Yet every other yoke is crushing by comparison. To serve self is to enter's bondage far more exacting than God's covenant of love. To live for men-pleasing is to slave for the twin daughters of the horae-leech, "Give, Give." If you want to see loaded lives and embittered hearts, look for them where men and women are straining soul and body for wealth or social ambition, worshipping self and success. Which of them, at the end of it all will tell you it has been worth while, or commend it earnestly to their children after them, or affirm sincerely they could wish nothing better than to do it all over again?

Different is the answer you will get from experience as to the yoke of Christ. The saints and heroes disclaim laudation of their service and sacrifices, and we common Christians who will never be canonised know very well that the Cross is the lightest of the loads which fall on human shoulders, and that no one carries it alone. The man or woman who has lived for God the most strenuously is the last to dream that He has played the taskmaster. He certainly has not "made us to slave," but He has "loaded us with benefits," something also is held out for the future about a "far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory."

2. God's burden in human sin.

"Thou hast made Me to serve with thine sins, and wearied Me with thine iniquities." God, whom men think of as the great taskmaster, is really the great burden-bearer. What an invasion of common conceptions! To be sure the language used is very humanistic, and by no means intended to suggest literal weariness in the sense in which that applies to ourselves. Still the language is essentially true, for there is that in the Divine nature, which is revealed in terms of fatherhood and sonship, and it is nearer the truth to conceive God as so infinitely remote in power and bliss that nothing concerning our human hearts or affairs can affect Him. After all, men are made in God's image and there are common terms as between him and his Maker.

It is not possible to add to the Bible's conception of the Divine majesty and glory, but the Bible shows us besides the sorrow and suffering of which our Saviour God is also capable, and which are not incompatible with the glory but are rather an expression and enhancement of it. It is this very section of the Bible—the second part of Isaiah—which prepares the way for the revelation of the Cross, setting forth the typical servant of Jehovah, not as a mighty conqueror, but as the supreme sufferer, who bore men's sins and carried their sorrows. Our human philosophies put God so far away in solitary majesty that nothing in this world of men and women can really affect Him. We get constant rebukes of one kind and another to-day for daring to dream that we or our little concerns can be anything to Him who has set the stars in their courses and to whom our centuries are but moments. Well, the Bible knows all about that, indeed it is rather interesting to notice that when superior persons take to lecturing the rest of us on the subject they will as like as not fall into Bible language to express themselves. But the Bible also knows that God is love. And love is susceptible to pain. Love cannot remain aloof and aloof even on Olympus. Love cannot be one thing in man and a different thing in God, Who made man. And you can grieve and burden God because you can sin against love.

"Ob, but you are conditioning the absolute. You are ascribing to it an imperfection, a frailty, a limitation inconsistent with the very idea of Divinity." Certainly, my dear philosopher, love is unconditional, and you are right if 'the absolute' be an It, and fatherhood an imperfection, and feeling of any kind a frailty, and the cherishing of hopes for children a limitation. And perhaps you will let me tell you what you have done when you have made your absolute so remote as to be beyond all these conditions and limitations so familiar and so fundamental in our human life. You have put a weapon into the hands of the devil to undermine the moral foundations of men's characters. You make sin cease to be sin when you tell us that God does not care, that in fact it is a species of egotistical impiety to imagine He can care, that in reality our good and bad are less than nothing to the Highest. It may be well enough to speculate away in this style at leisure, but I can tell you as a practical man that when your teaching filters through, it leads many a young fellow to sin with a lighter heart for the moment, and not till the bill falls due at ten or fifty years' date does he know how grimly you have misled him. Far more profound is the philosophy of the Gospel, supremely revealed in Jesus Christ, Who, though the Lord of glory, yet humbled Himself, and took upon Him the form of a servant, and becoming obedient, even unto the death of the Cross, bore our sins in His own body up to the tree, exemplifying in Himself all that had been known of the burden-bearing, redeeming God who suffered with His people and for them.

3. The burden bearer's right to forgive:—"I, even I, am He that blot out thy transgressions for mine own sake." Others perhaps might overlook, others might be morally indifferent and therefore refrain from punishment. But if we are to speak of forgiveness it belongs only to Him to whom the sin is a felt reality. The word forgive is apt to be used in a loose and empty way. People, for instance, will "forgive," as they imagine, from an inflated notion of their own superiority, considering the offender too contemptible to be noticed. To admit a man has done you a wrong is to place him, so far, on a footing of equality. But if for any reason you look down upon a fellow creature, well, you may hate him, very likely will, but forgive him you cannot. If you despise him so much that you decide to let him alone, so be it. You have only shown a contemptuous spirit, which is at the other pole. My point is that before you can forgive you must feel the wrong. It must have come from a source which is capable of inflicting pain, say your "own familiar friend," say a child, a brother. Your heart burns, your indignation rises, you are deeply wounded. If so, you are in a position to think about forgiveness truly as-called, and to understand what it is to forgive another "as our Heavenly Father forgives us."

God forgives not as the exalted Power so far above us as to be unaffected by anything we puny pigmies may do or leave undone, but as the Father Who has been wronged and grieved, having nourished and brought up children who have rebelled against Him. Forgiveness of that kind is the only kind that counts for anything. But that kind counts for everything, and that is why we can ask, with St. Paul, who is it that is to condemn if God has justified. Simply on the human plane it is conceded that the burden-bearer has the right to forgive. The last word lies with the man who has chiefly suffered, has been most deeply wronged and most keenly felt it. And that is the manner which God in Christ forgives us—not giving a legal dispensation as moral governor of the universe, neither as dropping a boon to beggars in the manner of a Lord Bountiful, but as our Father in whose sight we have sinned, whose heart our sins have burdened, whose love they have impeded. "I, even I, am He that blot out thy transgressions for mine own sake, and I will not remember thy sins."

Shanghai Coal: Messrs. Wheelock and Co. in their Coal Market Report, dated Shanghai, 19th July, state:—

Japan Coal:—Our local market has been rather quiet during the past fortnight—arrivals have been unusually heavy and stocks in Shanghai are considerably above the average for this season of the year—this fact has had the effect of making intending buyers hold back in anticipation that prices will rule easier on this account but as a matter of fact advices from Japan are entirely to the contrary—owing to decreased output and shortage of stocks at shipping ports there is every prospect of prices in Japan rising still higher in the near future, Fushun Coal:—No change, Kaiping Coal:—This market has ruled quiet but firm during the last fortnight. As usual during these months deliveries have been somewhat slack but prices remain very firm and there is every prospect of a big increase at the end of the year when rechartering has to be considered.

Shanghai Freight: Messrs. Wheelock and Co. in their Freight Market Report, dated Shanghai, 19th July, state:—

With regard to home-ward freights there is no change since last writing. Via Pacific:—There is plenty of cargo offering for the United States both to the Pacific and the Atlantic coast via Panama with not enough tonnage to handle it all, rates are consequently very firm and we should not be surprised if they were to take another rise in the future. Coastwise:—The Manchu Restoration was a very short-lived affair and since it has collapsed things have begun to adjust themselves again on the coast and there is a small but steady demand in most directions. It seems that we have not yet reached the limit of the rise in rate for steamers on a time charter "as we have just heard of the fixture of a small Norwegian steamer for China coasting trade at the rate of 60/- per ton dead-weight capacity per month. For New York via Panama:—For sailings apply to Steamship Agents. The attention of shippers is directed to the alteration in rates on antimony oxide, wet hides and human hair waste in bales.

Japanese Commander Killed. In Japanese papers it is reported that Commander Kiyosuke Eto, of the Japanese Navy, lost his life when the British battleship Vanguard blew up on July 9.

Shanghai Coal: Messrs. Wheelock and Co. in their Coal Market Report, dated Shanghai, 19th July, state:—

Japan Coal:—Our local market has been rather quiet during the past fortnight—arrivals have been unusually heavy and stocks in Shanghai are considerably above the average for this season of the year—this fact has had the effect of making intending buyers hold back in anticipation that prices will rule easier on this account but as a matter of fact advices from Japan are entirely to the contrary—owing to decreased output and shortage of stocks at shipping ports there is every prospect of prices in Japan rising still higher in the near future, Fushun Coal:—No change, Kaiping Coal:—This market has ruled quiet but firm during the last fortnight. As usual during these months deliveries have been somewhat slack but prices remain very firm and there is every prospect of a big increase at the end of the year when rechartering has to be considered.

Shanghai Freight: Messrs. Wheelock and Co. in their Freight Market Report, dated Shanghai, 19th July, state:—

With regard to home-ward freights there is no change since last writing. Via Pacific:—There is plenty of cargo offering for the United States both to the Pacific and the Atlantic coast via Panama with not enough tonnage to handle it all, rates are consequently very firm and we should not be surprised if they were to take another rise in the future. Coastwise:—The Manchu Restoration was a very short-lived affair and since it has collapsed things have begun to adjust themselves again on the coast and there is a small but steady demand in most directions. It seems that we have not yet reached the limit of the rise in rate for steamers on a time charter "as we have just heard of the fixture of a small Norwegian steamer for China coasting trade at the rate of 60/- per ton dead-weight capacity per month. For New York via Panama:—For sailings apply to Steamship Agents. The attention of shippers is directed to the alteration in rates on antimony oxide, wet hides and human hair waste in bales.

Japanese Commander Killed. In Japanese papers it is reported that Commander Kiyosuke Eto, of the Japanese Navy, lost his life when the British battleship Vanguard blew up on July 9.
